BY SATURDAY EVENING'S MAILS.

Stir.-Some time last summer the brokers and the Staunton banks had an angry controversy over the legal obligations imposed on the banks to redeem all drafts and checks in gold and silver. The Richmond broker presented for payment five drafts upon the Central Bank at Staunton, four of which were and the farms present a neat and well cared the great commercial cities of the North and drawn "payable in current funds," and the fifth without any limitation as to the manner of payment. The Bank offered to pay the drafts in current, bankable funds, but the broker, being unwilling to receive anything but gold and silver, had the drafts duly protested, and suits were instituted thereon. The plaintiff was represented by William H. Macfarland, of Richmond, and the Bank by Mr. H. W. Sheffey, of the Staunton Bar, both of whom delivered long and very able argumuents before Judge Thompson on Wednesday last. The court held that the Bank was at liberty to pay the four notes in curthe Bank had a right to make a contract as to the funds in which his drafts should be paid, and the drawee of the drafts took them subject to that contract, it the fact so appeared in the note, as was the case with the four notes whose payments were expressly provided for in "current funds." But as the fifth draft did not provide that it should be paid in "current funds," the Court held that the banking laws of the State required that it should be paid in the legal tender, gold and silver. The case will be taken to the Court of Appeals, where the question will be finally settled - Charlottesville Advocate.

THE TORNADO IN GLOUCESTER .- A gentleman from Gloucester tells us that the tornado which passed over that county on Friday last, passed over to Mathews, committing unheard of depredations all along its track .-He also says that old Oliver, the ferryman between York and Gloucester Point, was not drowned, but persons at York saw him taken up by the wind and carried off. Two negroes who were in a shed, the roof of which was blown off, heard the wailing of old Oliveras he was borne through the air upon the wings of the "storm king." His cries and groans say our informants, as he was dashed through the air, were truly distressing. His appeals for assistance were without avail, for no human power could rescue him from death and in a few moments he was beyond hearing, nor has his body been seen since that terrible evening! In the course of the tornado more than twenty houses were either destroyed or materially damaged, seventeen of which were dwellings. Among them was that beauti-ful residence of Mr. Tabb, known as Todbury's .- Richmond Dispatch.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—A Richmond Broker was very near losing a large pakage of money as he came down on the Thursday morning's mail train. Some how or other as the train was passing Mr. William Garth's plantation, at high speed, the Broker accidentally dropped from the train a package containing about $3,000. The train was immediately put back and fortunately the package was picked up safe and sound three or tour hundred yards back on the track. Had not the money been recovered the Broker would have been doubly unfortunate in his "run upon Staunton," as he was the one, we believe, against whom the Judge of the Augusta Court, decided the several causes of which we have made mention elsewhere in to-day's paper. - Charlottessille Ad-

EFFECTS OF FROST .- Reliable reports from the Western end of the Central Road inform us that the injury by the frost of the 5th inst is much greater than was anticipated. The whole wheat crop of Monroe was cut short at least one half; and in Greenbrier it is seriously apprehended that they will not harvest a sufficient quantity for seed next fall. The corn was cut to the ground, but has put out again and looks as well as could be expected. In the section of the State to which we have referred, the stock of provisions has been so reduced by the short crops of the last year and the preceding, that great suffering exists among the poorer classes, and fears are entertained that much greater suffering will be felt next winter and spring .- Charlottesville Advocate.

The 24th of October next, is the time fixed upon for the opening of the Agricultural Fair, at the new fair grounds west of Richmond; and from all that we can gather, there seems to be little or no doubt that the State and Central Societies will hold their fairs conjointly. Negotiations have been going on between the two Directories for some time, with a view to bring about a union exhibi-

The Derby Day in England.

In a recent letter of our London corresponlent he mentioned that, on a motion for the new House of Commons to adjourn to the following Wednesday, a member objected to Wednesday, as it was the Derby Day-menning that it was the great day of the Epsom races. We are reminded by this incident of the devotion of the English to another of their out-door sports, as commemorated in an official despatch many years ago from our Minister in London to his Government. mentioned that, having proposed to the Minister of Foreign Affairs an interview with him on the first of September, for the informal discussion of a question under negotiation, he was informed that it was impossible, as public business was virtually suspended on that day and for some weeks after, it being the commencements of the shooting scusou, when neither statesmen nor Parliament remained in town, or any body else who owned or could hire a dog and a gun, or possessed or could obtain the privilege of shooting ground. These national sparts do much, no doubt, to form the national character, physically and morally .- Nat. Int.

70 I have seen the official publication of a Correspondence between Mr. F. W. Ashby, as the representative of the "Protestant community," of Alexandria, "presenting to Rev. Mr. Lanahan a Service of Plate," and the grateful recipient of said present, "as an expression of personal esteem, and for the able and triumphant defence of their prin-ciples in his recent Lectures." My respect for the public, and my sincere love of trath, compel me to notice what otherwise I should have passed by as a matter in which I had no interest. But the very incorrect statements made by Rev. Mr. Lanaban, as regards myself personally, I beg leave to notice: 1st. It is not correct to say, or to intimate even, that I challenged the community to a discussion on religious subjects. I have never been either a pugilist or a gladiator in any arena. I invited, entreated, I appealed to, all my heavers, to exam-ine the grounds of Divine truth which I had elucidated, and to satisfy themselves that there was, and could be, only one Church of God on earth, the notes and characteristics of which I proved to exist only in the Roman Catholic Church. 2nd. It is not correct that I refused a challenge to a public discussion, for no challenge was made to Rev. Mr. Harrison's note, published by him self, proves that.

3rd. I made no attempt to throw odium on the gentlemen who left at my residence Mr. Harrison's note. I simply related what occurred. JAMES RYDER, S. J.
